The University of Iowa

No. 50 1964-1965

The Department of History presents its annual bulletin of items concerning the scholarly and professional activities of faculty, graduates, and graduate students.

The Faculty

The Department sorrowfully announces the death of Professor Hsin-pao Chang in Boston, Massachusetts, on January 19, 1965. Professor Chang was on leave of absence from the Department during 1964-1965, and at the time of his death was engaged on research at the Harvard-Yenching Institute on the Opium War. His book, Commissioner Lin and the Opium War, had just been published by the Harvard University Press. A memorial scholarship in his honor, for which contributions can be made through the Harvard-Yenching Institute, has been established to support a Chinese student in Asia.

Professor Patrick L. Alston addressed the Northeastern Division of the Illinois Education Association on the subject "Historical Perspectives on the News." He has completed the manuscript of his book, Education Against Revolution in the Russian Empire, 1700-1914, a study of the development of state education as an instrument for controlling social modernization.

Professor William O. Aydelotte has read papers at the annual meeting of the Iowa College Teachers of History at Simpson College, at a conference at Rutgers University on the use of computers in humanistic research, and at Duke University. His essay, "The Business Interests of the Gentry in the Parliament of 1841-47," has been republished in Bernard Barber and Elinor G. Barber, eds., European Social Class: Stability and Change. He has been elected a director of the Social Science Research Council, representing the American Historical Association. He has also become a member of the American Historical Association's Committee on Data Retrieval. He is a member of the Council and of Committee A of the American Association of University Professors.

Professor Clayton Brecht has been offering work in Far Eastern history during this year. Professor Brecht holds the B.A. degree from the University of Michigan and has done post-graduate work at the School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London. He has published "The Sino-Russian Border Dispute" in World Review and holds the regular position of Lecturer in History, University of Queensland, Brisbane, Australia. Professor Brecht will return to the University of Queensland this summer.

Professor Rosalie Colie has published "Johan Huizinga and the Task of Cultural History" in the April, 1964, issue of the American Historical Review, and "The Rhetoric of Transcendence: John Donne's Anniversary Poems" in the Philological Quarterly. She delivered papers on "Robert Burton, Atomism, and Psychological Theory" at the meeting of the Modern Language Association, on "John Locke and the Publication of the Private" at the Winterthur Seminar in Winterthur, Delaware, and on "Urban Pastoral: Castiglione's Cortegiano, Nature and Art" at the Midwestern Renaissance Conference at the University of Nebraska. Professor Colie has a poem forthcoming in The American Scholar and an article forthcoming in British Studies. She has written reviews for the Journal of English and Germanic Philology, Renaissance News, the Philological Quarterly, and the American Historical Review.

Professor Lawrence E. Gelfand is on leave this year in Washington, D.C., with a grant from the Rockefeller Foundation. He is engaged on research on the American Commission to Negotiate Peace at the Paris Peace Conference, 1918-1920. He was a commentator at the Mississippi Valley Historical Association meeting in Cleveland and a commentator at the session on the League of Nations at the American Historical Association meeting in Washington.

Professor Charles Gibson, Chairman of the Department, has published The Aztecs under Spanish Rule (Stanford University Press, 1964), and has contributed the Spanish American section to Introduction bibliographique à l'histoire du droit et à l'ethnologie juridique, published by the University of Brussels. He has written reviews for the American Historical Review, Hispanic American Historical Review, Handbook of Latin American Studies, and Southwestern Social Science Quarterly.

Professor Jonathan A. Goldstein's book on the letters of Demosthenes is to be published by Columbia University Press. He has published reviews in The Historian and the American Journal of Philology. His article on a Syriac document from Dura Europus is to appear in the Journal of Near Eastern Studies.

Professor Henry Horwitz has written an article, "Comprehension in the Seventeenth Century: A Postscript," forthcoming in Church History.

Professor Robert Kingdon was on leave during the first semester as Visiting Professor at Stanford University. He has published "Some French Reactions to the Council of Trent" in the June, 1964, issue of Church History, and a chapter on "The Renaissance and Reformation, 1300-1648" in the 34th Yearbook, National Council for the Social Studies. He is reading a paper on "The Contributions of the Platin Publishing House to the Library of Philip II" at the Newberry Library Renaissance Conference this spring.

Visiting Professor Philip L. Kintner offered a graduate readings course in the Department during Professor Kingdon's absence in the first semester. Professor Kintner is a member of the Department of History at Grinnell College and has taught previously at Reed College in Portland, Oregon, and at Trinity College in Hartford, Connecticut. He holds M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Yale University and is the author of an article, "A Finding List for Sebastian Franck in the New World" in Archiv für Reformationsgeschichte.

Professor Christopher Lasch has two books forthcoming: The New Radicalism in America: The Intellectual as a Social Type, to be published in May by Alfred A. Knopf; and The Social Thought of Jane Addams, an edited anthology to be published by Bobbs-Merrill in the American Heritage series. Last June Professor Lasch attended a symposium of the Committee on the Role of Education in American History at Cape Cod.

Emeritus Professor W. Ross Livingston is serving this year as Visiting Professor in British Empire history at the University of California, Los Angeles. He delivered an address at the Civil War Centennial meeting at St. Albans, Vermont, last fall.

Professor Sidney E. Mead has joined the Department with a joint appointment in The University of Iowa School of Religion and Department of History. Professor Mead holds the A.B. degree from the University of Redlands, and the A.M. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Chicago. He has taught at the Divinity School and in the Department of History of the University of Chicago and has served as President of Meadville Theological School. From 1960 to 1964 Professor Mead was Professor of American Church History at the Southern California School of Theology at Claremont. He is the author of Nathaniel W. Taylor, A Connecticut Liberal (1942) and The Lively Experiment, the Shaping of Christian- ity in America (1963), and of a large number of articles on American church history.

Professor Stow Persons served as Visiting Professor at the University of Colorado during the 1964 summer session and as Guest Lecturer at the Simpson College American Studies Institute last June. His paper, "The Origins of the Gentry," read at the Ohio State University conference on History and Literature in January is to be published in a Festschrift honoring Foster Rhea Dulles.

Professor William J. Petersen is working on two books, one on steamboating on the rivers of America, the other the Mississippi River Panorama. Membership of the State Historical Society, of which Professor Petersen is Superintendent, has increased to 8,800. Professor Petersen will be teaching this summer at Washington University, St. Louis.

Professor Malcolm J. Rohrbough has joined the Department to offer courses in the American west and middle period, following Professor Allan G. Bogue's acceptance of a position at the University of Wisconsin. Professor Rohrbough holds the A.B. degree from Harvard University and the M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Wisconsin. He has been a Fulbright Fellow at the University of Melbourne in Australia and has taught at Princeton University. He is working on the history of the General Land Office in the United States in the early nineteenth century.

Professor Alan B. Spitzer's article, "The Good Napoleon III," has been reprinted in Clough, Gay, and Warner, The European Past. Professor Spitzer has been appointed to the Board of Editors of the Journal of Modern History.
