The Department of History presents its annual bulletin of items concerning the scholarly and professional activities of faculty, graduates and graduate students.

The Faculty

Mr. R. David Arkush has joined the department as a specialist in modern Chinese history. Mr. Arkush has done his graduate work at Harvard and has studied in Taiwan. He is completing his dissertation on Fei Hsiao-tung, a contemporary Chinese sociologist and social critic.

Professor Robert R. Dykstra published "Stratification and Community Political Systems: Historians' Models" in a special historical issue of The American Behavioral Scientist (May/June, 1973). In June he will read a paper, "From La Follette to McCarthy: Rural and Small Town Voting in Wisconsin, 1904-1952," at the Conference on Quantitative Research in the History of Popular Voting Behavior sponsored at Cornell University by the Mathematical Social Science Board. He is now writing a study of Iowa politics in the Reconstruction Era, which is scheduled for inclusion next year in a book published by the Johns Hopkins Press, and in aid of which he has received a U of I Old Gold Summer Research Fellowship. To the American Biographical Encyclopedia (Harper & Row) he has contributed a brief interpretive essay on William F. ("Buffalo Bill") Cody. His book, The Cattle Towns, has been issued in a second paperback printing by Atheneum. He remains a member of the editorial advisory board of Civil War History and of the Agricultural History Society executive committee.

Professor Lawrence E. Gellert attended a meeting of the Society of American Archivists at Columbus, Ohio, in October and participated in a session conducted by the Committee on Federal-State Relations, of which he has been a member. He also attended the meeting of the Regional Council of Archivists, National Archives, on which he serves, held at Independence, Missouri, in January, 1973. He presented a paper, "Does History Teach: Some Observations on the Teaching of History in the Secondary Schools," at the meeting of the Iowa Council for the Social Studies, in Des Moines. He again represented University President Willard Boyd at the Board Meeting of the Harry S. Truman Library Institute, in Independence, Missouri. He completed an article on the American lawyer and statesman, John Ellsworth Root, which will be published in the American Biographical Encyclopedia, a volume edited by Professor John Garraty of Columbia. He contributed book reviews to the Journal of American History, Wall Street Review, Pacific Northwest Quarterly, Journal of Modern History.

Professor Ralph E. Giesey collaborated with J.M.H. Saunon in publishing Francogallia, by Francois Hotman (Cambridge U. Press, 1972). His article, "Quod Omnes Tangit—A Post Scriptum," appeared in Studia Gratiana, XV. In the fall semester, 1972, he was visiting professor and seminar leader at the Folger Library, Washington, D.C. He delivered a public lecture on "Ceremonial and Historical Myth." Previously, in the spring of 1972, he was commentator at a session devoted to "The Massacre of St. Bartholomew's Day in Historical Perspective," at the Newberry Library Renaissance Conference.

Professor Jonathan Goldstein continues to work on his commentary to Fust and Schedel's Nuremberg Chronicle. His article on "The Tales of the Tertiaries in Josephus" will appear in a volume of essays in honor of Morton Smith. He has been invited to lecture on the persecution of Jews by Antiochus IV, at the Sixth World Congress of Jewish Studies in Jerusalem, August 13-19, 1973.

Professor Charles A. Hale has been elected a member of the steering committee of the Consortium of Latin American Studies Programs, and he attended the fall, 1972, meeting of the committee in Gainesville, Florida. In February, 1973, he gave a lecture at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill. He contributed a chapter, "Liberalism and Conservatism in Nineteenth-Century Mexico: Ideological Conflict or Fractional Strife," to Joseph S. Tulchin, ed., Problems in Latin American History (New York, Harper & Row, 1973). His article "The Reconstruction of Nineteenth-Century Political History in Spanish America: A Case for the History of Ideas" will appear in the Latin American Research Review in June, 1973. He has been awarded a Guggenheim Fellowship and a University of Iowa Faculty Research Assignment for 1973-74 to continue his study of Mexican political ideas, 1867-1910.

Professor Ellis W. Hawley continues to be a member of the Editorial Advisory Board of the Business History Review and is Iowa's representative on the Membership Committee of the Organization of American Historians. He has written interpretive essays on Adolf A. Berle and James A. Farley for the American Biographical Encyclopedia. His article, "Herbert Hoover, the Commerce Secretariat, and the Vision of an 'Associate State,'" 1921-28," has been accepted for publication in the Journal of American History. His paper, "Herbert Hoover and American Corporatism, 1892-1933," was presented at a conference on "The Hoover Presidency as a Twentieth Century Watershed," at Geneseo, New York. It will be published by the S.U.N.Y. Press. He also served as commentator at a session on "Comparative Responses to the Great Depression," at the OAH conference in Chicago.

Professor John R. Henneman has edited a book on The Medieval French Monarchy (Dryden Press, 1973) and has completed a new book, Royal Taxation in Fourteenth Century France: The Captivity and Ransom of John II, 1356-1370. His article, "The French Ransom Aids and Two Legal Traditions," appeared in Studia Gratiana, XV. He served as co-chairman for Local Arrangements for the Midwest Medieval conference in Iowa City in October, 1972, and is chairman of the Program Committee for the meeting of this conference scheduled for October, 1973, in Milwaukee. He has reviews of two books forthcoming in Speculum: Town and Countryside in Fourteenth Century Flanders, by David Nicholas, and Bankers to the Crown, by Richard Kaeuper. His review of The Fiscal System of Renaissance France, by Mark William Will, will appear in The Sixteenth Century Journal. He has received a University of Iowa Research Assignment for the spring semester, 1974, to begin a study of the economic position of the military class in late medieval France.
Professor Horowicz has been on leave during 1972-73 and is conducting research in England.

Professor Sydney V. James, chairman of the department, has received a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities to continue his work on colonial Rhode Island.

Professor Laurence Lafere lectured at the Naval War College on the origins of World War I. His book on the Italian-Ethiopian war of 1935-36, Days of Emperor and Clown, will be published by Doubleday in the summer of 1973. He is completing work on another novel and conducting research on the composition of the British press.

Professor Stephen Large has published a book, The Rise of Labor in Japan: The Yukanai, 1912-1919. He gave a paper, "Labor Politics in the Social Democratic Movement in Freew Japan: Considerations," at a meeting of the Midwest Japan Seminar in Iowa City. He is serving as Director of the Center for East Asian Studies at the University of Iowa.

Professor Emeritus Ross Livingston taught his course on the British Empire and Commonwealth in the fall semester. At Duke University, Emeritus Sidney Mead retired in 1972 but gave his usual courses on the history of religion in America during the fall semester, 1972. He participated in a session at the AHA conference in New Orleans that was devoted to his works. He gave a paper on "America's Religious and Democratic Traditions" and gave the featured lecture on "The Religion of the Republic" at a special symposium on "Religion and the Republic" in Iowa City in the spring of 1973.

Mr. Wilson J. Moses organized seminars and chaired sessions for the University's Fourth Annual Institute for Afro-American Studies. He also delivered a paper at the Institute: "Ethiopianism and Interpretive Mythology: Two Traditions in the Early Poetry of Du Bois." He became an advisor to another of the Afro-American student groups on campus—Famoja Tutushinda (together, we will win). He is now faculty advisor to two student groups. His article, "Marcus Garvey: A Reappraisal," appeared in the November/December Issue of the Black Scholar. He delivered a paper in the 1972-73 Cultural Series of the Afro-American Studies Program at this University, "A Short Note on Recent Scholarship on Black Nationalism." He delivered a paper at the Conference of the University of Wisconsin—La Crosse, April 5-7, "Black Nationalism: An Intellectual Tradition and a Problem for Scholars." He also gave a paper at the meetings of the Popular Culture Association in Indianapolis, April 13-15, "Ethnicity versus Feminism: The National Association of Colored Women, 1892-1900."

Professor Jaroslav Pelikán read a paper on the "Role of the Haidams in the Decline of Poland" at a session devoted to the 200th anniversary of the First Partition of Poland at the 87th Meeting of the American Historical Association in New Orleans, Louisiana, in December, 1972. He served as chairman of a session on "The Haidams as Seen in Russian, Polish, Ukrainian, Jewish and Turkic Sources." at the 6th National Convention of the American Association for the Advancement of Slavic Studies in New York, in April, 1973. Professor Pelikán continued his research on his main scholarly project, "The Conflict between Muscovy and Poland-Lithuania for the Lands of Old Rus' (1450-1569)." He completed the writing of his monographic study, entitled "The Incorporation of the Ukrainian Lands of Old Rus' into Crown Poland (1569): Socio-Material Interest and Ideology—A Re-examination," to be presented as a major paper at the Seventh International Congress of Slavists to be held in Warsaw, in August, 1973.

Professor Stow Persons has published a book, The Decline of American Centrality (Columbia University Press, 1973). Mr. Hermann Rebell has joined the department as a specialist in early modern central Europe and the Reformation. Formerly a member of the faculty at York University, he is completing a dissertation for the University of California at Berkeley on Landed Power and Agrarian Depression: The Social and Economic Background to the Upper Austrian Peasant Rebellion, 1815. He is working on a high school textbook on "Technology, Resources, and Values" in the United States.

Professor Malcolm J. Rohrbough is continuing work on his institutional history of the trans-Appalachian frontiers, 1775-1850. He hopes to spend part of the next academic year as Visiting Lecturer at the Flinders University of South Australia.

Professor David Schoenbaum lectured at the Naval War College, attended the National Archives Conference on Film and Audiovisual Materials in Newark, Delaware, served on the American Historical Association Committee on Documentary Film and TV, and participated as commentator in Cornell College’s two-day symposium for Eric Kollman. He published articles in Foreign Policy and the Bulletin of the AASP, and looks forward to a year in Europe on research leave from the University.

Professor Alan B. Spitzer was chairman of a seminar on the police at the Conference of the Society for French Historical Studies at Chapel Hill, March, 1973. He continued his research on the French Restoration and the historical problem of generations.

Professor Donald Sutherland’s book, The Assize of Novel Deodain was published in May, 1973, by the Clarendon Press. His article, "Conquest and Law," appeared in Studia Gratiana, XV. He served as co-chairman for Local Arrangements at the Midwest Medieval Conference in Iowa City and was chairman of the session of the AHA Conference at Northeastern Illinois University in April, 1973. He has received a Guggenheim Fellowship for 1973-74 to complete his edition of the law reports of the ear of Northamptonshire of 1292-1330 for the Selden Society.

Graduates

Dorsey D. Jones, Ph.D. 1929, a long-time professor of history at the University of Arkansas, was awarded the degree of Doctor of Humane Letters by Drury College at the Commencement in August, 1972.

Paul H. Goldens, Ph.D. 1930, has received honorary degrees in 1971 from Hamline University where he was in residence from 1953-1968 and in 1972 from Allegheny College where he taught from 1931 to 1953. A new 35.7 million classroom building at Hamline has been named the Paul H. Goldens Alumni Learning Center. Mr. Goldens has also written three reviews of books about oil for the Western Pennsylvania Magazine of History, the Business History Review, and the Journal of American History. His article, "The Historical Origin of the Trade Mark, Exxon," has been accepted for publication in the Business History Review in the fall of 1973.

Boyd C. Shafer, Ph.D. 1932, now professor of history at the University of Arizona, is International President of Pi Alpha Theta and First Vice-President of the International Committee of Historical Sciences. His book, Faces of Nationalism, has been published by Harcourt Bruce Jovanovich.

Waysh Halich, Ph.D. 1934, who retired from teaching at the University of Wisconsin, Superior, in 1966, published an article last year in the Boyko Chronicle (Toronto) on the ancient village of Strilbysi in the Ukraine. Because of his extensive writings on the subject the past forty years, he was invited to become a consulting editor of a book on Ukrainian Americans now in preparation by several historians of Kent University.

Philip D. Jordan, Ph.D. 1935, is President, Board of Trustees,
Burlington (Iowa) Public Library; Director, Burlington Rotary Club; and Director, Des Moines County Historical Society. He has been named Curator of the State Historical Society of Iowa by Governor Ray. He has published articles and/or reviews in Minnesota History, The Palimpsest, North Dakota History, The Plains Historical Journal, and Limesh Le Gi. He has published "The Tomb Marshal and the Police," in Ray Allen Billington, ed., People of the Plains and Mountains (Westport, Conn.: Greenwood Press, 1973). He is Editor of Law Enforcement Agencies in Canada, Mexico, Texas, and the United States, to be published by Amon Carter Museum of Western Art, Fort Worth, Texas, and to which he has contributed "The United States Marshal and His Deputies."

Walker D. Wyman, Ph.D. 1935, professor of history at University of Wisconsin-Biron Falls, has published two books in 1972: Charles Round Low Cloud, Voice of the Winnebago (in collaboration with William L. Clark), and Frontier Woman. He reviewed The Hot and the Horse on the Plains by Preston Holder for the Pacific Northwest Quarterly, and American Folklore and the Historian by Richard Dornon for Minnesota History.

Harold T. Hagg, Ph.D. 1939, has contributed a book review to the winter 1972 issue of Minnesota History, as well as an article entitled "Logging Lines: A History of the Minneapolis, Red Lake, and Manitoba." In November 1972, he addressed the Staples Historical Society of Staples, Minnesota, on the topic, "History at Home." He and a colleague at Benjiddly State College have been honored for their long service at the college: a new student building has been named Hagg-Sauer Hall.

Gordon W. Prange, Ph.D. 1937, professor of history at the University of Maryland, is the author of "Miracle at Midway," a condensation of which has been published in the Reader's Digest (November, 1972). It is undertaking further research on World War II and has delivered a number of addresses on Pearl Harbor in the Washington area.

Millard Hansen, Ph.D. 1939, professor of social science at the University of Puerto Rico, has been included in the 1972 edition of Who's Who in America. His book, Education for Competent Participation, will be published this year.

R. L. Lokken, Ph.D. 1939, now President Emeritus of Valley City State College, continues to live in Valley City, N.D. During his career as president he had the unusual experience of conferring degrees on both his children and his daughter-in-law. He has recently completed a junior high school textbook on the history and government of North Dakota.

Eugene M. Emme, Ph.D. 1949, received the Alumni Award from Morningside College in May, 1972, chaired the 6th History Symposium of the International Academy of Astronautics in Vienna, Austria, in October, and was re-elected to the Advisory Council of the Society for the History of Technology in December. He will retire from the U.S. Air Force Reserve in the rank of Colonel in June of this year, and is organizing the 7th IAA History Symposium meeting in Baku, USSR, in October. He had book reviews in Technology and Culture and the Aerospace Historian, contributed three essays to the Dictionary of American History, and is now writing the first volume of the history of NASA in addition to his other NASA duties.

Evelyn Johnson, Ph.D. 1949, chairman of the department of history at Drake University, gave a paper entitled "Opportunities for Research and Publication in Iowa History" at the annual meeting of Iowa college and university teachers of history held in Cedar Rapids in the fall of 1972.

Donald F. Pierce, Ph.D. 1949, has been re-elected chairman of the history department at Eastern Washington State College.

Norbert J. Grossman, Ph.D. 1953, organized and served as chairman of a session on "British Radcllism and the Concept of International Revolution" at the meeting of the AHA in New Orleans in December, 1972.

Harry M. Hotson, Ph.D. 1952, has been appointed Alumni Distinguished Service Professor at the University of Tennessee.

John Bengston, Ph.D. 1953, professor of history at the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh, has completed a summer faculty study program at Kansas University in Japan. He is listed in the current edition of Who's Who in America.

Donald Graham, Ph.D. 1953, formerly dean of the graduate school at University of Wisconsin-Whitewater, is now chairman of the history department there.

Dwight W. Hoover, Ph.D. 1953, was on sabbatical leave last year (1971-72) and spent the academic year in London working on a book on racial ideas to be published by Rand McNally. He co-edited with C. Warren Vanderhill a book entitled American Society in the 20th Century which was published by John Wiley in the spring of 1972. He was commentator on a session on ethnicity at the AHA meeting in April.

George Breathedt, Ph.D. 1954, Chairman of the Division of Social Sciences at Bennett College, presented a paper on "The Afro-French Experience in Latin America" at the Annual Meeting of the Social and Behavioral Scientists in New Orleans, Louisiana. He was elected to the BLACK ACADEMY OF MERIT. He presented a series of lectures and seminars at the College of the Virgin Islands in February, 1973. He has contributed a book review of Haiti and the Dominican Republic, by Raiford W. Logan, to the Catholic Historical Review, October, 1972. He served as a consultant to the Institute for Services to Education in Washington, D.C.

Lawrence J. McCaffrey, Ph.D. 1954, chairman of the department of history at Loyola of Chicago, has been elected vice-president of the American Committee for Irish Studies. His article "Daniel Corkery and Irish Cultural Nationalism" will soon appear in Éire-Ireland. He has papers appearing in the American Historical Review, Journal of Modern History, The Review of Politics, Cithara, History, and Catholic Historical Review. He read a paper on "Ireland and the Victorian Compromise" at the Midwest Conference on British Studies at Iowa City in October, 1972, and another paper, "Irish Nationalism and Irish Catholicism: A Study in Cultural Identity," at the AHA convention in New Orleans.

Duane Meyer, Ph.D. 1958, is now president of Southwest Missouri State University. He is publishing a fourth edition of his book The Heritage of a Missouri: A History.

Donald Weinstein, Ph.D. 1957, professor of history at Rutgers University, has published an article, "In Whose Image and Likeness? Interpretations of Renaissance Humanism," in the Journal of the History of Ideas (1972). He spent last August doing research at the British Museum, and participated in a session on Latin Poetry at a conference on late medieval and renaissance religion held at Ann Arbor in April, 1972. He also participated in the conference of Medieval Historiography held at Harvard in November. He reviewed Rich and Poor in Venice: The Social Institutions of a Catholic State, to 1620, by Brian Pullan, for the American Historical Review.

Leonard F. Ralston, Ph.D. 1960, professor of history at S.U.N.Y. Cortland, has co-authored an eighth grade textbook entitled The Search for Freedom. His article, "Railroad Interests in Early Iowa," has been published in Annals of Iowa. He is currently working on a quantitative study of Cortland County, New York, a project sponsored by the Research Foundation of the S.U.N.Y.

Robert J. Knowlton, Ph.D. 1963, has been promoted to full professor at the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point and has been appointed an Associate in the Area Center for Latin American Studies at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee. He will be commentator on a panel on Peruvian cooperatives at the spring meeting of the Wisconsin Council of Latin Americanists, and will serve as a panelist on the "Methodology of Social Revolution" at the national meeting of the Latin American Studies Association in May, 1973. He was a panelist on "Teaching Mexican History" at the AHA conference at New Orleans, and he gave a paper, "Do We Exploit Our Neighbors," in the Foreign Policy Association program, "Great Decisions: 1973."

Robert D. Lincler, Ph.D. 1963, co-edited and contributed an article to The Cross and the Flag: Evangelical Christianity and Contemporary Affairs, named one of the "choice religious books of 1972" by Christianity Today. He gave a paper, "Humanism and the Reformation in France," at the AHA conference in New Orleans. He has been elected to the Nominating Committee of the Conference on Scottish Studies.

Harold Baum, Ph.D. 1964, currently on sabbatical leave from the University of Utah, received that university's Distinguished Teaching Award in 1972.

Robert L. Cold, Ph.D. 1964, associate professor of history at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, was guest lecturer at Murray State University in April, 1972, on the subject, "Social Conflict and Cosmic Racism in Mexico." He participated in the conference of the Midwest Association of Latin American Studies at Carbondale in October and has recently spent a year of research in South America.

Richard V. Pierard, Ph.D. 1964, joined two other Iowa Alumni as co-editor and contributor to the recently published The Cross and the Flag: Evangelical Christianity and Contemporary Affairs. He spent August, 1972, doing research in Germany and has recently been promoted to full professor at Indiana State University. He is presently serving as part-time visiting professor of history at Greenville College (Illinois). His recent articles include "The Golden Image of Nebuchadnezzar," Reformed Journal, 1972; and "Economic Imperialism: Reflections on a Historical Myth," International Review of His- tory and Political Science, 1973. He has also given the following papers: "Recovering the Lost Vision of Evangelical Social Concern" at the Malone College Faith and History Conference, October, 1972; "Is Evangelicalism Awakening from Its Social Slumber?" at the Calvin College Conference on Christianity and Social Concern in_Political Social Concern in Religious America," and "Evangelical Concern in American Conservative Religious Thought" at a convocation at Huntington College (Indiana), April, 1973.

Donald Nugent, Ph.D. 1965, is currently on leave from the University of Kentucky and has been visiting lecturer at University College (Dublin). His book on the Cypriot of Cyprus is being published by the Harvard University Press, and he is finishing another book, entitled The Masks of Satan, a general interpretive study on the western demonic.

Robert P. Swierenga, Ph.D. 1965, professor of history at Kent State University, has published an article, "Computerized Historical Research in the U.S.A. A Survey and Evaluation," Information Processing (1972). He read a paper, "Computers and Comparative History," to the Conference of the Interna- tional Society for the Comparative Study of Civilizations, at Richmond, Ky. He has lectured on the quantitative approach to history at Geneva College, Pembroke State College, and Ball State University. He has been elected to the Executive Committee of the Agricultural Society and to the Conference on Faith and History.

Rodney G. Davis, Ph.D. 1965, director of the American Studies program at Knox College, is leading a workshop to develop a Midwest Studies Center at the college. The project is financed by the N.E.H. His article, "Before Barbed Wire: Herd Law Agitations in Early Kansas and Nebraska," has been re-printed in James C. Malin and the Dynamic of Herd Law (ed. R. W. Williams). He read a paper, "The Influence of Party Political Leadership in Illinois in the Jacksonian Era," at the AHA convention in Chicago.

Erling Erickson, Ph.D. 1967, is on the faculty of University of the Pacific at Stockton, California. He has co-authored a textbook, The American Quest.

William L. Bowers, Ph.D. 1968, is an associate professor of history at Bradley University. His manuscript, The Country Life Movement in America, 1900-1920, has been accepted for publication by Knokeat. His article, "Liberty Hyde Bailey's Philosophy of Country Life," was published in the winter issue of Bailey, a quarterly journal of horticultural taxonomy.

William C. Lubinow, Ph.D. 1967, is coordinator of the history program at St. John's College State College in New Jersey. He continues his research on late Victorian politics, with the aid of a grant from the Penrose fund of the American Philosophical Society.

David C. Lukowitz, Ph.D. 1968, associate professor of his- tory at Hamline University, continues his work on British pacifism. He read a paper, "British Pacifists and Foreign Poli- cy," at the Northern Great Plains History Conference at Win- nipeg, Manitoba. He has also written lengthy introductions to two volumes in the Garland Library of War and Peace: Why Pacifists Should Be Socialists, by George Lambury, and International Reconstruction, by Paul van Zeeland.

Clifford H. Scott, Ph.D. 1968, chairman of the history depart- ment at Indiana University at Fort Wayne, has published "Up the Congo Without a Paddle: Images of Blackest Africa in American Fiction," North Dakota Quarterly (1972). He has also published reviews in the Indiana Magazine of History and the Journal of the West, and has received a summer faculty fellow- ship to complete an intellectual biography of Lester Ward.

Hamilton Cravens, Ph.D. 1969, has returned to Iowa State University from the University of Maryland, College Park, after a year as Visiting Assistant Professor of History. While in the Washington, D.C., area, he finished research on two book- length projects, The Discovery of Many American Scientists and the Heredity-Environment Controversy, 1900-1940, and Friends of Science: A Biographical and Occupational Guide to the American Scientific Community, 1852-1875; the latter is scheduled for publication by the Greenwood Publishing Company in the spring of 1974. He is also working on several articles. He has published book reviews in several journals, including the American Historical Review, the Pacific Northwest Quarterly, and Physics Today. He delivered two papers: "Professionalization and the Origins of the Culture Concept in the American Social Sciences, 1890-1940," *Southern Historical Association, November, 1972, Hollywood, Florida; "Race or Culture: American Scientists, the Problem of Race Theory, and the Invention of Cultural Pluralism, 1890-1930," Organization of American Historians, April, 1973, Chicago, Illinois. He also chaired a session at the Missouri Valley History Conference, Omaha, Nebraska, March, 1973. He was recently reappointed to a second two-year term, ending in 1976, on the editorial board of American Studies, the journal of the Mid-Continent American Studies Association. He plans to spend several weeks during the summer of 1973 doing research in manuscript collections located in several archives and libraries on the East Coast.

Thomas J. Schlereth, Ph.D. 1969, assistant professor of his- tory at the University of Notre Dame, has been appointed to the Indiana University Committee on Historic Preservation. He has published The History Reader: An Introduction to the Study of History, and has recently given a lecture, "Aging in Historical Perspective," at a conference on Government,
Family, and the Elderly, of the Indiana Committee of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Howard A. Barnes, Ph.D. 1970, assistant professor of history at Winston-Salem State University, has received a grant to support his continuing research on Horace Bushnell. He has contributed a book review to the Wisconsin Magazine of History, and has been experimenting with a new "competency-based" approach to teaching in his freshman history course.

Charles Elbel, Ph.D. 1970, assistant professor of history at Central Michigan University, spent the summer of 1972 doing archaeological research in southern France. His doctoral dissertation has been revised and published in French translation by the Groupe Archéologique Painlevé.

Wayne S. Osborn, Ph.D. 1970, assistant professor of history at Iowa State University, has an article, "Indian Land Retention in Colonial Metzthlan," scheduled for publication in the May, 1973, issue of the Hispanic American Historical Review.

Niel M. Johnson, Ph.D. 1971, assistant professor of history at Dana College, is conducting an oral history project involving Danish-American residents of Washington County, Nebraska. He and his students are engaged in other projects of local history, including the overseeing of certain works of historical restoration now in progress.

Philip D. Jordan, Ph.D. 1971, assistant professor of history at Western State College of Colorado, is currently revising his dissertation for publication, and has presented a paper, "Christian Union Amidst Religious Diversity, 1867-1873," to a joint session of the Rocky Mountain-Great Plains body of the American Academy of Religion, the Society of Biblical Literature, and the College Theological Society.

Harold L. Smith, Ph.D. 1971, is assistant professor of history at the University of Montana. He presented a paper on "World War I and British Left Intellectuals: The Case of Leonard T. Hobhouse" at the 1973 meeting of the Conference on British Studies, Pacific Northwest section.

David DeLeon, Ph.D. 1972, assistant professor of history, University of Maryland at Baltimore, has published "Dogma of the Sovereignty of the People": De Tocqueville's (Religion) in America," Journal of Church and State (1972). He has written a review of Joseph Starobin's American Communism in Crisis, 1945-1957 in Labor History, 14 (Spring, 1973), 114-117, and has done radio scripts and interviews for two programs on the Baltimore station WBIC-FM: "Vintage Reds: The Old Left" and "The Black Flag of Anarchy" (including an interview with Dr. Robert Paul Wolff). He contributed to a monthly media review of the "underground press." He has written a bibliographic essay for Collector's Exchange: For Collectors of Socialist, Radical and Labor History Literature, on contemporary Anarchist publications. He has compiled an anthology for fall, 1973: publication: Power to Imagination: Fantasy as a Force for Social Change (Times Change Press), and a collection of Anarchist essays—part of a larger anthology that he is compiling. He received $2,000 summer fellowship from the University of Maryland to revise his dissertation "The American as Anarchist: A Socio-Historical Interpretation." He will present a paper at the fall 1973 American Studies Association convention: "The Protestant Ethic and the Spirit of American Capitalism: Toward an Appreciation of Weber and Tawney." His article was accepted for publication in the Montclair Journal of the Social Sciences: "Early Left Alternatives to Fabianism: Utopia versus Utility, 1884-1889." At the Fall 1973 Western Conference, Association for Asian Studies, he will present a paper: "A Menshevik Program with Bolshevik Methods: Trotsky's Critique of Stalinist China Policy, to 1940.

Nina J. Noring, Ph.D. 1972, is employed in the historical studies division of the Historical Office of the Department of State.

Conferences

This year's Spring History Conference (March 23) featured "The History of Women: European and American." Professor Darline Levy of Hunter College impressed the assembled university, college, and secondary school teachers with the role of "The Women of Paris in the French Revolution," and Professor Carl N. Degler of Stanford University fascinated all with the topic "The Myth of the Piano Legs in Pants; or, the Sexuality of Nineteenth-Century Middle Class Women." In the afternoon a panel discussion came to grips with the knotty question of "Teaching Women's History," to which both guest speakers as well as Ms. Mimi Frenier of The University of Iowa and Mrs. Carolyn Jepson of Kennedy High School, Cedar Rapids, contributed.

Degrees

Summer Session, 1973

Professor Donald Sutherland will be chairman during the summer session. He will also offer the first half of the Survey of Medieval Civilization. Professor Gelfand will be giving American Foreign Relations, 1775-1890. Professor John James plans to offer the second half of the Survey of American History and the first half of his course on American Economic History. Professor David Schoenbaum will give Modern Europe, 1815-1890, as well as a graduate reading course. The staff will be completed by four visitors. Professor Paul Paxton of the University of Wisconsin at Superior will give the modern half of Western Civilization. Professor David Burner of the State University of New York at Stony Brook will offer Recent American History, 1920 to the present, in addition to a graduate course. Professor Richard Thomas of Cornell College will commute to provide us with a new course on White-Race relations in the United States, though the computerized schedule of courses insists on calling it Topics in American Social History. Professor Beatrice Gottlieb of Barnard College will join us to introduce a new course, History of Women in Europe Before the Industrial Era, as well as a graduate course in the early modern European field.

In Memoriam