

ing in both the American Historical Review and the Old Northwest.

GEORGE BREATHEHT, 1954, director of Planning/AIDP at Bennett College, had another busy year. He completed (with Ewa Eko) Research in the Social Sciences and Humanities (4 vols., Greensboro, 1974-78). He chaired a panel on "French Colonial Politics and the West Indies in the Nineteenth Century" at the annual meeting of the Association of Caribbean Historians, St. Thomas, Virgin Islands (March 1978). For the U.S. Office of Education, he served as a panelist at an Advanced Institutional Development Program, San Francisco, and as an evaluator of Title III, Southern University, Shreveport, Louisiana. He has also been reappointed to the Editorial Board of the Journal of Negro History.

LAWRENCE J. McCAFFREY, 1954, professor of history at Loyola University in Chicago, published "Clashing Images: Irish and English," a review essay on Patrick O'Farrell's England and Ireland Since 1800, in Reviews in European History (December 1977); "Catholicism and Irish Liberal Democracy," a retrospect essay in Reviews in European History (April 1978); and "Chicago's Irish" in the Irish Times (September 11, 1977). He read a paper, "Catholic and British Influences on Irish Liberal Democracy Since 1921," at the annual meeting of the American Historical Association, Dallas (December 1977), and commented on Irish-American literature papers at the annual meeting of the Modern Language Association in Chicago (December 1977). His book, Ireland: From Colony to Nation State, will be published by Prentice-Hall in 1979.

DUANE MEYER, 1956, continues to serve as president of Southwest Missouri State University, Springfield.

DONALD WEINSTEIN, 1957, has accepted the position of head of the Department of History, University of Arizona. He will assume his new duties on July 1. He is continuing his work on hagiography.

GEORGE W. SIEBER, 1960, continues as chairman, Department of History, University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh. He chaired a session on U.S. economic history at the Missouri Valley History Conference at Omaha (March 1978).

ROBERT G. CLOUSE, 1963, has completed 15 years as a member of the History Department at Indiana State University. He gave a paper, "The Millennium that Survived the Fifth Monarchy Men," at the annual meeting of the American Society of Church History, Iowa City (April 1978), and a paper, "Christ and Culture, The Case of Henry Ritz Holsinger and the Progressive Brethren," at the Fourth Conference of Brethren Historians, Bridgewater College (April 1978). His article, "Flow-ering: The Western Church," appeared in Eerdman's Handbook to the History of Christianity (Grand Rapids, 1977). The InterVarsity Press has published a second printing of his book, The Meaning of the Millennium, Four Views (Downers Grove, 1978). He also attended an NEH-sponsored seminar on "Literature and Politics in Seventeenth Century England," at the University of Chicago (June-August 1977), and served as chairman of the Local Arrangements Committee for the Sixteenth-Century Studies Conference at Indiana State University (October 1977). He served on the Board of Directors of the Eugene V. Debs Foundation.

ROBERT D. LINDER, 1963, professor of history at the Kansas State University, had a busy and varied year. He coauthored (with Richard V. Pierard, 1964) Twilight of the Saints: Biblical Christianity and Civil Religion in America (Downers Grove, 1978). He also published two chapters, "Introduction: The Christian Centuries" and "The Reformation: Rome Responds," and served as American consulting editor for Eerdman's Handbook to the History of Christianity (Grand Rapids, 1977). He delivered a paper, "The Calvinist Response to the Formula of Concord, 1577," to a joint session of the American Society of Church History and the American Society for Reformation Research at the annual meeting of American Historical Association in Dallas (1977). On other fronts, he was elected mayor of Manhattan, Kansas, and he delivered the commencement address at Sterling College.

HUBERT H. WUBBEN, 1963, associate professor of history at Oregon State University, has published "Molly Mason Remy: 'My Heart Is Set on My Children'. Part II: Mother and Navy Wife," Annals of Iowa (Summer 1977), and "Copperhead Charles Mason: A Problem in Loyalty," Civil War History (March 1978). The College of Liberal Arts, Oregon State University, has granted him released time (fall quarter 1977) which, coupled with a sabbatical (spring quarter 1977), will enable him to complete his manuscript on "Civil War Copperheadism in Iowa."

BRUCE CURTIS, 1964, professor in the Department of American Thought and Language, Michigan State University, has published "Victorians Aged: William Graham Sumner on the Family, Women, and Sex," in American Studies (Spring 1977); "On Nuclear Waste: Beyond 'Enola Gay,'" in Michigan State University's State News (April 1978); and "An Introduction to Logic and Evidence," Good Writing (Winter 1978). His article "William Graham Sumner and the Problem of Progress," has been accepted by the New England Quarterly; and an article, "Sinclair and Sumner: The Private Background of a Public Confrontation," will be forthcoming in Mid-America. With Joy Curtis, he has written a manuscript entitled "Illness and the Victorian Lady: The Case of Jeannie Sumner," and they have presented a paper on this subject before the American Studies Association. For several years, he has edited the monthly Letter of the MSU Faculty Associates, an affiliate of the MEA/NEA that is attempting to organize the faculty for collective bargaining. Of his activities, he writes, "I continued my teaching and research interest in utopian thought and experimentation by attending a conference on 'Utopianism and the New World' at McMaster University, Hamilton, Ontario, in April. I will spend my sabbatical year 1978-79 in Europe with my family."

RICHARD V. PIERARD, 1964, professor of history, Indiana State University, has spent the spring term as a research fellow at the University of Aberdeen, Scotland. He took part in an NEH-sponsored seminar at Vanderbilt University on the topic "Europe in the Age of Fascism, 1919-1945" (Summer 1977). Among his new publications are a book (with Robert Linder, 1963), Twilight of the Saints: Biblical Christianity and Civil Religion in America (Downers Grove, 1978); a chapter on political history and ideology in the twentieth century, entitled "An Age of Ideology," in the Eerdman's Handbook to the History of Christianity (1977); and an article, "Why Did German Protestants Welcome Hitler?" in Fides et Historia (Spring 1978). He delivered the Pi Gamma Mu lecture at Bethel College, St. Paul, Minnesota, on the topic "The New American Evangelical Right," (November 1977), and a series of lectures on "Major Themes in the History of Protestant Foreign Missions in Germany" at the Freie Theologische Akademie, Darmstadt, Germany (April 1978).

ROBERT P. SWIERENGA, 1965, professor of history, Kent State University, published "Land Speculation and Its Impact on American Economic Growth and Welfare: An Historiographical Review," Western Historical Quarterly (July 1977), and "Historical Data and the Social Sciences: A Review Essay," Urban History Yearbook (1978). Among his other professional activities, he commented at a session of the annual meeting of the Western History Association in Portland (October 1977); presided at a session of the Social Science History Association Conference, Ann Arbor (November 1977); and presented the Phi Alpha Theta lecture, entitled "Behavioralism in Historical Research," at Ball State University History Department Lectures Series and at the Western Pennsylvania Regional Conference, Westminster College (April 1978). He was also elected to the Editorial Board of Agricultural History. "Within the department," he writes, "I assumed the duties of the Graduate Program Director for a three year stint."

GILBERT ALLARDYCE, 1966, professor at the University of New Brunswick, received the university's "Excellence in Teaching" Award for 1977. His article, "What Fascism Is Not: Thoughts on the Deflation of a Concept," has been accepted for publication by the American Historical Review.

WELDON S. CROWLEY, 1966, continues to serve as chairman of the Department of History, Southwestern University. His article on Erastianism will appear in a forthcoming issue of the Journal of Church and State. He has been selected "Outstanding Professor" at Southwestern University for the second consecutive year.

DAVID C. LUKOWITZ, 1968, Hamline University, writes that he will spend the summer in London, continuing research on a biography of Percy W. Bartlett, an English Quaker and pacifist. He has published "Students as Apprentice Historians" in Teaching History (Spring 1978). He served as a commentator on a panel dealing with the teaching of history at the Great Lakes History Conference (April 1978).

CLIFFORD H. SCOTT, 1968, Indiana University-Purdue University at Fort Wayne, has delivered papers on Anglo-German conflict and German-American assimilation in Indiana to the Indiana Historical Society (September 1977), the Great Lakes History Conference (April), and the Society for German-American Studies (May). Of his other duties, he writes, "My university work has involved much time as a member of our university's coordinating committee for a North Central Association self-study and accreditation visit."

HAMILTON CRAVENS, 1969, associate professor of history at Iowa State University, reports that his book, The Triumph of Evolution: American Scientists and the Heredity-Environment Controversy 1900-1941, is scheduled for June 1978 publication by the University of Pennsylvania Press. He has received a grant from the History and Philosophy of Science Program, National Science Foundation, to finish a short monograph during the summer of 1978 on the history of The University of Iowa's Child Welfare Research Station, 1917-1969. He also has a leave from Iowa State University for next year to complete a book on the history of racial mental-testing in twentieth-century America, and he has won a travel research grant from the Rockefeller Archive Center. He continues to serve as chairman of the Editorial Board of American Studies. At the Organization of American Historians annual meeting (April 1978), he chaired a session, "Psychology in Good Times and Bad: The Growth and Contraction of a Science and Profession, 1917-1941."

THOMAS J. SCHLERETH, 1969, has been elected chairman, department of American Studies, University of Notre Dame. He is also a member of the Indiana Library Association Commission, and he serves as a member of the American Studies Regional Studies Council and as a consultant to the Chicago Historical Society and the National Endowment for the Humanities. He has published Historic House Museums: Seven Teaching Strategies (Nashville, 1978); "The Historic Museum Village as a Cross-Disciplinary Learning Laboratory," Museologist (June 1977); "John Zahn: Priest, Physicist, and Publicist of Theistic Evolution," in John Zahn, Evolution and Dogma (New York, 1977); "Historical Museum Villages as Text Book History," Museum News (February 1978); and "Fictions and Facts: Henry Adams's Democracy and Gore Vidal's 1876," Southern Quarterly (Spring 1978). He presented papers to the Society of Architectural Historians, Henry Francis DuPont Winterthur Museum, Chicago Historical Society, Indianapolis Museum of Art, and Xavier University.

HOWARD A. BARNES, 1970, associate professor at Winston-Salem State University, published an article, "Horace Bushnell: Gentry Elitist," in Connecticut History (Summer 1977). He also reviewed for History: Review of New Books and the North Carolina Historical Review. In the summer of 1977, he participated in an NEH summer seminar at the University of Arkansas, where he wrote a paper entitled "Failure and Freedom: Intellectuals in the Age of Reform." His current research project, tentatively entitled "Digested McGuffey: Change and Continuity in American Values," is an attempt "to identify popular American values through a study of McGuffey readers and ten years of Reader's Digest."

C. JOHN SOMMERVILLE, 1970, associate professor at the University of Florida, was chosen one of six President's Scholars at the University of Florida for a paper entitled "The Family Fights Back: Its Struggle with Reform Movements." He presented a paper on the history of childhood at the Davis Center for Historical Studies, Princeton University.

PHILIP D. JORDAN, 1971, associate professor at Western State College of Colorado, has published "Cooperation Without Incorporation—America and the Presbyterian Alliance, 1870-1880," Journal of Presbyterian History (Spring 1977); his article, "Immigrants, Methodists and a Conservative Social Gospel, 1865-1908," has been accepted for publication in Methodist History (forthcoming, 1978). He read a paper, "Methodist Episcopal Church Response to Immigration, 1865-1900," at the Rocky Mountain Regional Meeting of the American Academy of Religion, St. Thomas Seminary, Denver (April 1977); a paper, "Immigrants, Methodists and a Conservative Social Gospel, 1865-1908," at the National Conference of the American Academy of Religion, San Francisco (December 1977); and convened a session on "Religion and Culture," at the Regional Meeting of the AAR, Denver (April 1978). He also reviewed for History: Reviews of New Books, Church History, Choice, and Iliff Review.

PETER L. PETERSEN, 1971, has been promoted to professor at West Texas State University. He has published "The Oslo Community: A Norwegian Settlement at the Top of Texas," in Nyheter (February 1977) and coauthored "Square Deal" for Eschit: A Footnote from the Progressive Era," in Donovan Hofsonmer, ed., Railroads in Oklahoma (Oklahoma City, 1977).

HAROLD SMITH, 1971, University of Houston at Victoria, spent the summer of 1977 at UCLA as an NEH Fellow. He was coauthor of a Humanities program grant proposal which was accepted by the NEH in the fall of 1977. His article, "The Issue of 'Equal Pay for Equal Work' in Great Britain: 1914-1919," has been accepted for publication in Societas.

During early June of 1977, Professor DAVID DELEON, 1972, presented a paper before an interdisciplinary seminar at the University of California, Berkeley, as the culmination of his year-long NEH fellowship at that school. This paper, combined with his dissertation, resulted in The American as Anarchist: Reflections on Indigenous Radicalism, which has now been accepted for publication by the Johns Hopkins University Press (Fall 1978). It will have an introduction by Dr. Robert Bellah of the Sociology Department of the University of California, Berkeley. Also during this period, Professor DeLeon co-edited, with scholars in sociology and American studies, an anthology, Reinventing Anarchy: What Are the Anarchists Thinking These Days? which will be published by Routledge and Kegan Paul, in London and Boston, during the fall of 1978. For this anthology, he contributed two essays: "Anarchism on the Origins and Functions of the State" and an analysis of the literature of workers' control, "For Democracy Where We Work: A Rationale for Social Self-Management." He received a grant from the University of Maryland in 1978 to complete these projects. Finally, he contributed four book reviews to the Journal of American History, Teaching History, and History: Reviews of New Books. He is continuing his research and writing for a topical survey of radicalism, American Visions of Freedom, and a thematic restructuring of his own field, Definitions of Our Lives: An American Intellectual History.

PAUL B. PIXTON, 1972, has been promoted to associate professor at Brigham Young University. He has published "Auf Gottes Wachturm: Ein erzbischöfliches Reformprogramm in Trier des 12. Jahrhunderts," Kurtrierisches Jahrbuch, 17. Jahrgang 1977, and "Die Anwerbung des Heeres Christi: Prediger das Fünften Kreuzzuges in Deutschland," Deutsches Archiv (May 1978). He has been granted a professional developmental leave from June 1978 to June 1979 to pursue research at the Monumenta Germaniae Historica in Munich and at other German archives, leading to a detailed study of the impact of the reform decrees of the Fourth Lateran Council upon the German church between 1215 and 1272. This leave has been assisted by grants from the College of Social Sciences at BYU and from the German Academic Exchange Service (DAAD).

JAMES L. THANE, 1972, still serves as chairman of the Department of History, Black Hawk College. He continues work on his history of the Montana Territory.

MICHAEL D. GREEN, 1973, assistant professor in the Department of History and Native American Studies, Dartmouth College, has been acting chairperson of Native American Studies for the past year. He presented a paper, "We Dance in Opposite Directions: Mesquakie (Fox) Separatism within the Sac and Fox Tribe," at the annual meeting of the Pacific Coast Branch of the American Historical Association, Flagstaff (August 1977). His paper, "Alexander McGillivray, Great Beloved Man of the Creeks," delivered at the Native American Studies at Dartmouth Symposium on Native American Leadership, Past and Present (May 1978), will be published in extended form in R. David Edmunds, American Indian Leadership: Past and Present (forthcoming, University of Nebraska Press). He continues to work on his book-length manuscript, tentatively entitled "The Politics of Indian Policy: An Ethnohistorical Analysis of the Relations between the Creek Nation and the Governments of Georgia, Alabama, and the United States, 1815-1835."

MARY KELLEY, 1974, assistant professor of history at Dartmouth College, published "A Woman Alone: Catherine Maria Sedgwick's Spinsterhood in Nineteenth-Century America," in the New England Quarterly (June 1978), and her article, "The Sentimentalists: Promise and Betrayal in the Home," was accepted for publication in Signs: Journal of Women in Culture and Society (forthcoming, 1979). She is editor and contributor (introduction and one essay) to Women, Identity, and Vocation in American History, a collection of essays to be published in the winter of 1978-79 by G. K. Hall. The essays will be chosen from papers presented at a Conference on the History of Women, sponsored by Women Historians of the Midwest and the Chicago Area Women's History Conference, St. Paul (October 1977). She served as chair and commentator at a session, "Private Lives: Nineteenth-Century American Diaries," at this conference. She gave a paper, "Women Writing for Women in Nineteenth-Century America," at the Smith Center, Portland State University, Portland (December 1977), and served as a panelist for a session, "Cultural Images of Women in Nineteenth- and Twentieth-Century America," at a State-wide Conference sponsored by the New Hampshire Council for the Humanities and the New Hampshire Coalition on Battered Women, Manchester (April 1978). She also participated in a panel on "Sex Roles in a Changing Society," broadcast over Vermont Public Radio (February 1978).

ROBERT E. HUMPHREY, 1975, has published Children of Fantasy: The First Rebels of Greenwich Village (New York, 1978).

JO ANN MANFRA, 1975, associate professor at Worcester Polytechnic Institute, was admitted to the Massachusetts Bar in December 1977. She was a fellow of the Radcliffe Institute for Independent Study (1977-78). She has contracted with the Temple University Press for a book-length manuscript entitled "The Catholic Hierarchy in America, 1789-1852."

DENNIS P. RUSCHE, 1975, Northern Arizona University, writes, "I am continuing to work on a manuscript whose theme is mediocrity in American culture."

GARETH SHELLMAN, 1975, Department of History, University of North Carolina at Charlotte, made a research trip to Germany, highlighted by a visit to the Central Archives of the German Democratic Republic at Potsdam. He organized a panel and read a paper on agrarian movements in German history at the Duquesne History Forum in Pittsburgh (October 1977). He has also received a travel grant from the American Council of Learned Societies to help support his participation in the Congress of the International Association of Agricultural Museums, which will meet at Neubrandenburg, Germany (September 1978).

MARC BAER, 1976, Case Western Reserve University, published an article, "Social Structure, Voting Behavior and Political Change in Victorian London," in Albion (Fall 1977). He participated in a panel, "Undergraduate Computer-Based Instruction," at the annual meeting of the Social Science History Association, held in Ann Arbor (October 1977). He read a paper, "Quantitative Data Analysis in Undergraduate History Instruction," at Greenville College (October 1977), and a paper, "Computers in the History Classroom: Problems and Possibilities," at a Conference on the Teaching of History at State University College, Fredonia (March 1978), sponsored by the American Historical Association. At the Missouri Valley History Conference (March 1978), he read a paper, "Computer-Based Instruction in European History Courses." He has accepted a new position at Frostburg College, Frostburg, Maryland, beginning in the fall.

HARRY DAHLHEIMER, 1976, associate professor of history at SUNY/Cortland, presented a paper entitled "The American Factor in Britain's Pre-Munich Diplomacy" to the Rocky Mountain Conference on British Studies at Colorado State University, Fort Collins (October 1977). He has received a Cortland College Faculty Research Grant to work in the Franklin D. Roosevelt Library at Hyde Park and in the Widener Library of Harvard University on papers relating to diplomacy in the 1930s. His projected title for the study is "Chamberlain, Roosevelt, and Munich." This summer he has been awarded an NEH fellowship to attend a seminar at the University of Chicago on the theme "Perspectives in Chinese History."

MARVIN W. FALK, University of Alaska, 1976, published "Contemporary and Retrospective Research Base Development," in Technical Session Papers of the 28th Alaskan Science Conference (vol. 3). He has also published reviews in Pacific Northwest Quarterly and the Alaska Journal. At the annual meeting of the Alaska Historical Society, he was appointed to the Board of Directors, and he has also been elected a faculty delegate to the Campus Assembly, University of Alaska, Fairbanks.

LARRY G. WILEY, 1976, has accepted a position as chaplain and assistant professor of religion at Westmar College, Le Mars, Iowa. He writes, "I have had a very busy year learning my responsibilities and discovering how very little I know about teaching undergraduates!"

ROBERT C. PALMER, 1977, University of Alberta, has spent the past nine months as an Andrew W. Mellon Fellow in the Humanities at the Graduate School of the City University of New York, where he has continued work on his monograph, "The County Courts of Medieval England." In addition to his lectures at CUNY, he delivered a paper, "Jurisdiction in Personal Actions in the Reign of Edward I," to the Northeast Branch meeting of the American Society for Legal History at Philadelphia (March 1978). He will return to the University of Alberta in July to begin a two-year term as an Isaac Walton Killam Memorial Postdoctoral Scholar. He notes, "The position is concerned mostly with research, but it does allow to teach one course each semester for the two years."