

of Georgia, has a book coming out in the fall: Colonial America: A History (KTO Press). He has contributed to Samuel Proctor, ed., Eighteenth Century Florida and the Revolutionary South (Gainesville, 1978) and James K. Martin, ed., Interpreting Colonial America, (Dodd, Mead, rev. ed., 1978). He presented the paper "The Invisible People of the Colonial South" at the thirty-ninth Conference on Early American History and Culture sponsored by the Institute of Early American History and Culture, Williamsburg, Virginia. He is on various editorial boards for the Georgia Review, America, History and Life, and the Journal of Plantation Society and is on the board of advisers of the Georgia Museum of Art.

EUGENE M. EMME, 1949, serves as chairman of the history committee of the American Astronautical Society and co-chairman of the history committee of the International Academy of Astronautics. NASA Administrator Robert Frosch gave him a certificate of appreciation in January 1979 for his three decades of federal service, and, "in particular, for his strong guidance and leadership of the history program of NASA." He gave his lectures "American Air Power from Kitty Hawk to Pearl Harbor" at the Air Force Academy History Symposium and "Presidents and Space: Eisenhower to Carter" at the Goddard Memorial Symposium of the American Astronautical Society in Washington, D.C. In addition to writing, he also serves as general editor of the history series published by the American Astronautical Society.

KEACH JOHNSON, 1949, now retired from Drake, notes that his article "Iowa Dairying at the Turn of the Century: The New Agriculture and Progressivism," will be reprinted in a textbook reader, Rural America in Historical Perspective, which the University of Mid-America is designing for publication next winter. He has also submitted to the Annals of Iowa a piece on elementary and secondary education in Iowa from 1890-1900.

WALTER F. PETERSON, 1951, continues as president of the University of Dubuque. His study "An Industrial Heritage: The History of the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Company" has been published by the Milwaukee County Historical Society.

NORBERT J. GOSSMAN, 1952, of the University of Detroit, served as chairman and commentator of the session on charism at the fall meeting of the Conference on British Studies held at Arizona State University, Tempe.

JOHN R. BENGTSON, 1953, professor of history at the University of Wisconsin, Oshkosh, had a book review in South-eastern Europe recently.

DWIGHT W. HOOVER, 1953, of Ball State University, edited, with John T. K. Koumoulides, Conspectus of History: Cities in History (Cambridge University Press, 1978), a collection of the lectures given in the History Department Series 1976-77. He read a paper entitled "Towards a Social History of Muncie" at a meeting of the Middletown III group, which is restudying Muncie, at Charlottesville, Virginia (he has a collateral appointment as professor of historical sociology at the University of Virginia). He also gave the paper "Image of America" to the Friends of Bracken Library. He reviewed four books for Choice and one for the Christian Scholar's Review. NEH awarded him a grant for preparing a television script called "Middletown's Criminal Courts from 1832 to 1932."

GEORGE BREATHETT, 1954, director of Planning/AIDP at Bennett College, presented a paper, "Haiti in the French Revolution, 1789-1790: New Perspectives of the Afro-French Experience," at the fiftieth anniversary celebration of the History Department, Tennessee State University. He conducted a session on management of federal programs in higher education at a meeting of the Advanced Institutional Development Program directors in Las Vegas and served as a consultant to the U.S. Office of Education's Division of College Support on the revisions of guidelines for strengthening developing institutions' programs.

LAWRENCE J. MCCAFFREY, 1954, professor of history at Loyola University of Chicago, saw his Ireland from Colony to Nation State published by Prentice-Hall. He read a paper "Irish Leaders of American Catholicism" at the Duquesne History Forum and discussed Irish nationalism at a history symposium on twentieth-century Ireland at Rhode Island College. He was visiting professor at Northwestern this spring and will teach Irish-American history at the Cork Summer School in Ireland this summer.

GEORGE W. SIEBER, 1960, continues as chairperson of the Department of History at the University of Wisconsin, Oshkosh and completed two book reviews this year.

HAROLD A. WILSON, 1961, of the University of Florida has had three books published by the Renaissance Press in the last two years: Conflict in Ireland (of which he is coeditor as well as contributor of an article on "De Valera and Partition"), Onward and Downward, and Triumph of Trivia. He also has an article, "Ireland from Union to Partition," in Eire 19.

ROBERT J. KNOWLTON, 1963, is at the University of Wisconsin, Stevens Point. He published "La individualización de la propiedad corporativa civil en el siglo XIX—notas sobre Jalisco" in Historia Mexicana (vol. 28, no. 1) and continues his research on civil corporate property in nineteenth-century Mexico.

ROBERT D. LINDER, 1963, of Kansas State University, published Twilight of the Saints: Biblical Christianity and Civil Religion in America (Chicago: InterVarsity Press, 1978) and "Billy Graham in Poland," in Christianity Today (October 1978). He gave two special series of lectures: the annual Colloquium on the History of Christianity Lectures at Oak Hill Theological College, London, and the annual Church History Lectures at Central Baptist Theological Seminary, Kansas City. He gave talks at five Kansas colleges—"Civil Religion and Its Meaning for Americans Today," "Women in Christian History," "The Role of the Clergy in the Salem Witchcraft Trials," "St. Francis of Assisi and Medieval Christian Spirituality," and "The Christian Intellectual in the Age of the Reformation." In the summer of 1978 he did research and traveled in Northern Ireland, East Germany, and Poland. In addition to all that he served as mayor of Manhattan, Kansas, and chairperson of a county board and a university committee.

HUGH H. WUBBEN, 1963, associate professor at Oregon State University, writes that his book Civil War Iowa and the Copperhead Movement has been accepted for publication by the Iowa State University Press at Ames.

RICHARD V. PIERAND, 1964, professor of history at Indiana State University, served as a member of the planning committee for the Indiana Governor's Conference on Libraries and Information Services and was elected as one of 12 delegates from Indiana to the White House Conference on Libraries and Information Services. His articles for the year include "Julius Richter and the Scientific Study of Christian Missions in Germany," Missiology (October 1978); "The Quest for the Historical Evangelicalism: A Bibliographical Excursus," Fides et Historia (Spring 1979); "One Nation under God: Judgment or Jingoism?" in Perry C. Cotham, ed., Christian Social Ethics: Perspectives and Problems (Grand Rapids: Baker Book House, 1979); and "Faith of Our Fathers: Some Post-Bicentennial Reflections," Covenant Quarterly (November 1977). He and Robert C. Clouse (1963) have written a high-school-level world civilization textbook, Streams of Civilization, vol. 2 (Milford, Michigan: Mott Media, 1979). He delivered the Earle E. Carins Annual History Lecture at Wheaton (Illinois) College—"Faith in Action: Aspects of Evangelical Social Concern in 19th Century Germany." He directed the Indiana State University study abroad program in Ireland and Britain with Robert Clouse in May. Last summer he traveled with Robert Linder (1963) in East and West Germany and Poland doing interviews for articles on the religious situation in these three countries which were published in Christianity Today in September and October 1978.

HARRY HONG, 1965, is chairman and professor of history and political science at Jamestown College in North Dakota and has been director of the January interim program there since 1972. Last summer he did research on a postdoctoral fellowship at the University of Tokyo and Seoul National University on Japan's self-defense force and Korean security. This spring he was honored as professor of the year by Jamestown College.

ROBERT P. SWIERENGA, 1965, of Kent State University published "The Open University: Historical Data and the Social Sciences," Urban History Yearbook (1978); "The New Rural Social History," MISHAP (Minnesota Social History Project Newsletter, January 1979); and "Social Statistics and Historical Research: A Symbiosis," Ukrainian Historian (1978). He presented papers on Dutch immigration research to the seventh International Economic History Congress in Edinburgh, the Southern Historical Association meeting in Saint Louis, the National Genealogical Society at the National Archives, and the Western Michigan Genealogical Society in Grand Rapids. He presided at sessions of the Social Science History Association in Columbus and at the Conference on Faith and History, Beaver Falls, Pennsylvania. In addition he presented a series of eight lectures in the Dordt College Lecture Series, Sioux Center, Iowa, and at Northwestern College, Orange City, Iowa. He continues to serve as graduate program director, editor of Social Science History, and member of the editorial board of Agricultural History.

GILBERT ALLARDYCE, 1966, professor of history at the University of New Brunswick, had an article on "What Fascism Is Not: Thoughts on the Deflation of a Concept," in the April issue of the American Historical Review. He has been awarded a sabbatical leave grant from the Humanities and Social Science Research Council of Canada for research on French communism.

WELDON S. CROWLEY, 1966, Lucy King Brown professor at Southwestern University, is returning to teaching and chairing the History Department after completing his role as general chairman of the university-wide program-governance structure and as chairman of the Humanities Division. He is also resuming his study of some seventeenth-century English political pamphleteers.

RODNEY O. DAVIS, 1966, chairman of the Department of History at Knox College, read a paper on "Prudence Crandall, Spiritualism, and Populist-Era Reform in Kansas" at the Mid-Continent American Studies Association meeting at New Harmony, Indiana. He presided and commented at the sixth Lincoln Day Symposium held by the Abraham Lincoln Association at Springfield, Illinois, and led a workshop at the third Newberry Library Conference on State and Local History in Chicago. He is also chairman of the Galesburg, Illinois, landmark commission.

DONALD J. MACINTYRE, 1966, is leaving his position as vice-president for academic affairs at the University of San Francisco to assume the presidency of Metropolitan State College in Denver.

JOHN R. BLYSMA, 1968, will be on leave from Augustana College this coming fall to do research at the Institute of Historical Research of the University of London on the characteristics of the MPs who sat in the 1852-57 House of Commons.

WILLIAM C. LUBENOW, 1968, professor of history at Stockton State College, Pomona, New Jersey, reports that he published a paper, "Ireland, the Great Depression, and the Railway Rates," which is an examination of back-bench voting in the British House of Commons, in the Proceedings of the American Philosophical Society. He continues his research on political behavior in the 1886 House of Commons.

CLIFFORD H. SCOTT, 1968, of Indiana University, Purdue University at Fort Wayne, was a participant at the Newberry Library Conference on State and Local History, delivered a paper at the OAH in New Orleans, and served as an NEH historian consultant to a small history museum in Indiana.

HAMILTON CRAVENS, 1969, associate professor of history, Iowa State University, has been on leave this year working on a monograph, tentatively entitled "Pioneer: The Iowa Child Welfare Research Station and the Emergence of the Science of the Child." He has conducted archival research at various depositories in the country, including the Rockefeller Archive Center, The University of Iowa, the University of California, Berkeley, and the University of Cincinnati, supported by the Rockefeller Archive Center, the National Science Foundation, and Iowa State University. He also won renewal of his National Science Foundation grant for the summer of 1979. He delivered a paper, "Inconstancy of the Intelligence Quotient: The Iowa Child Welfare Research Station and the Criticism of Hereditarian Mental Testing, 1917-1939," at the annual meeting of the History of Science Society in Madison. He also delivered an invited lecture, "The Wandering I.Q.: A Historical Example," at the University of Cincinnati. He continues to serve as chairman of the editorial board of American Studies.

THOMAS J. SCHLERETH, 1969, was appointed director of graduate studies in the Department of American Studies at the University of Notre Dame. He was also appointed to the board of editors of the Indiana Magazine of History and to the editorial board of the Indiana History Guide series. During 1978 his research on Solon S. Beman's architecture, 1858-1914, was supported by a National Endowment for the Humanities fellowship. In the past year his publications include: "American Scholarship in Material Culture, 1876-1978," in the Proceedings of the First International Conference on Material History (1979); "Collecting Ideas and Artifacts: Common Problems of History Museums and History Texts," Roundtable Reports (1978); "Introductory Essay," to Arthur J. Hope, Notre Dame: One Hundred Years (reprint of 1948 edition); "Urban Material Culture" in Newberry Library Papers (1978); "John Zahm: Priest Physicist, Publicist of Theistic Evolution" in John Zahm, Evolution and Dogma (1978); "Vegetation as an Index to Past Landscapes: A Historian's Use of Plants as Material Culture Evidence," Morton Arboretum Quarterly (1979). In March 1979, Schlereth represented American scholars at the first international Congress on Material Culture History held in Ottawa where he addressed a plenary session on the topic, "American Scholarship and Material Culture Studies."

HELEN R. UPSON, 1969, since retiring from United States International University, California Western Campus, has been at National University in San Diego. There she teaches two courses which she developed—"The Social Environment of Business" and "Power and Social Change"—in the graduate program of business management, a program designed for middle-level business executives and administrators, taught at night and on weekends.

GERALD W. WOLFF, 1969, was on an NEH grant last fall compiling and editing a book-length manuscript called "Voices from the Plains," based on oral histories at the University of South Dakota. He presented papers to the National Workshop on Oral History of the National Oral History Association at Savannah and was a commentator at a session of the Northern Great Plains History Conference. He was cocompiler of "A Subject Index for the American Indian Research Project Catalogs of the Oral History Resource Center, University of South Dakota," and wrote an article on Major General Lloyd R. Moses for the Institute of Indian Studies Bulletin, University of South Dakota.

J. WAYNE BAKER, 1970, of the University of Akron, reports that his manuscript, "Heinrich Bullinger and the Covenant: The Other Reformed Tradition," has been accepted for publication by Ohio University Press. He gave a paper on "Zwingli and Oecolampadius on Discipline: The Origins of the Reformed Schism," at the spring meeting of the American Society for Reformation Research in conjunction with the fourteenth international Congress on Medieval Studies at Western Michigan University.

HOWARD A. BARNES, 1970, has been involved in administration as "coordinator" of the eight historians within the Social Science Department at Winston-Salem State University. He proposed and advised the publication of a photocopied Social Science Journal with articles and reviews from students and faculty in the department. He read a paper, "Digested McGuffey: Change and Continuity in American Values," at the meeting in Nashville of the Popular Culture Association in the South and wrote a review for History: Review of New Books.

NIEL JOHNSON, 1971, attended an archival training course at the National Archives and Records Service in Washington in the spring of last year. His essay, "Lutherans in American Economic Life," appeared in Groh and Smith, The Lutheran Church in North American Life (Saint Louis: Clayton, 1979). In his work as archivist-historian at the Truman Library, he completed the draft of a story line for use in museum restoration, and he coauthored an article "Resources at the Truman Library on Western Issues and Programs" that will soon appear in the Government Publications Review.

PHILIP D. JORDAN, 1971, has been promoted to professor of history at Western State College of Colorado. The October 1978 issue of Methodist History published his article "Immigrants, Methodists, and a Conservative Social Gospel, 1865-1914." He presented a paper, "Josiah Strong and a Scientific Social Gospel," before the national conference of the American Academy of Religion in New Orleans. Aside from serving on the planning committee and chairing a history section at the regional meeting in Denver, he was also elected treasurer of the Rocky Mountain-Great Plains section of the American Academy of Religion.

PETER L. PETERSEN, 1971, professor at West Texas State University, published "A Park for the Panhandle: The Acquisition and Development of Palo Duro Canyon State Park," in Panhandle-Plains Historical Review, as well as reviews in Agricultural History, Southwestern Historical Quarterly, and North Dakota History. He was appointed to the editorial and publications committee of the Danish American Heritage Society. He participated in the NEH-sponsored symposium, "FSA Photography: A Re-Examination," in Amarillo; a television program based on interviews with six surviving FSA photographers will be released later this year.

HAROLD SMITH, 1971, has been appointed to a new tenure-track position as assistant professor of humanities at the University of Houston at Victoria. He received a grant from the South Texas Golden Crescent Council of Governments to establish an oral history program and has served as the director of the Victoria County oral history program during the past year. He has been awarded a grant from the UHVC research council to support a research trip to England during the summer of 1979 to investigate the issue of equal pay for equal work in Great Britain during World War II. He published biographical essays on Henry Massingham and C. D. H. Cole in The Biographical Dictionary of Modern British Radicals Since 1770 edited by J. O. Baylen and N. Gosman (Humanities Press, 1979) and has a review in the Journal of Economic History.

DAVID DELEON, 1972, completed minor rewriting and editing for two books: The American as Anarchist: Reflections on Indigenous Radicalism (Johns Hopkins, 1978) and a coedited anthology, Reinventing Anarchy: What Are Anarchists Thinking These Days? (Routledge and Kegan Paul, 1979), to which he contributed several essays. A brief summary of the thesis of his book was published on the Op-Ed page of the New York Times on January 26, 1979. During the last year, he has also written book reviews for History: Reviews of New Books, The Historian, Studies in History and Society, and the Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science. He prepared a paper, "An American Radical Saint: Dorothy Day of the Catholic Worker Movement," requested for the second international Congress of North American History in Milan this month. This summer he will attend John Diggins's two-month NEH seminar at the University of California, Irvine.

JAMES L. THANE, JR., 1972, continues as chairman of the Department of History and Government at Black Hawk College, Moline. He is doing research on the development of the Montana Territory.

MICHAEL J. HOGAN, 1974, assistant professor at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio, has completed an article on "Thomas W. Lamont and European Reconstruction: The Diplomacy of Privatism in a Corporatist Age, 1918-1925," for a forthcoming collection of essays by ABC-Clio. He is presently working on a manuscript on the Marshall Plan and the making of U.S. foreign policy after World War II. He has been awarded a summer research fellowship by Miami University and the Tom L. Evans grant from the Harry S. Truman Library Institute for National and International Studies.

MARY KELLEY, 1974, who is assistant professor at Dartmouth, has edited and contributed an introduction and one article to Woman's Being, Woman's Place: Female Identity and Vocation in American History, coming from G. K. Hall in the fall. The article is "At War with Herself: Harriet Beecher Stowe as Woman in Conflict within the Home," American Studies (Fall 1978). Two other articles which have appeared in the last 12 months were listed in last year's Newsletter. She has book reviews in the Journal of American History, New York History, and Annals of Iowa. She gave a series of talks at the University of Oklahoma entitled "Private Conflict Made Public: Women Writing for Women in 19th-century America," "Expectations and Reality: Harriet Beecher Stowe's Wifehood and Motherhood in 19th-century America," and "Women and Work." She chaired the panel "Religion and Literature" at the OAS meeting in New Orleans and has given public lectures throughout New Hampshire and Vermont for those states' councils on the humanities. In progress is revision of her book-length study of nineteenth-century American women writers called "Crisis of Domesticity: Women Writing of Women in Nineteenth-Century America."

ABRAHAM SCHERR, 1974, has accepted a position with the Naval Ocean Systems Center in San Diego. Meanwhile he has completed the draft of a novel entitled Operation Ragnarok.

LATHAN A. WINDLEY, 1974, of Morgan State University in Baltimore has published an article, "Flight and Rebellion: A Case of Hyperbolic Exaggeration," in Negro History Bulletin (September-October 1978) and a document, "Runaway Slave Advertisements of George Washington and Thomas Jefferson," in the Journal of Negro History (Fall 1978).

DAVID F. KREIN, 1975, has been promoted to associate professor of history and appointed chairman of the Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences at Palmer Junior College in Davenport; he continues as head of the Department of Social Science. His book, The Last Palmerston Government: Foreign Policy, Domestic Politics, and the Genesis of "Splendid Isolation" was published by Iowa State University Press last November. He spoke to the Davenport Rotary Club on the topic "Nazi Germany Revisited" and discussed the merits of liberal arts education on a local television program.

JO ANN MANFRA, 1975, associate professor at Worcester Polytechnic Institute, spent 1978-79 as a fellow of the Radcliffe Institute for Independent Study and as a graduate student in the Harvard Law School. This June she receives her LL.M. degree with a thesis—"Northern Exclusionary Measures and the Privileges and Immunities of Free Blacks, 1778-1857: An Unexamined Theme in Antislavery Constitutionalism." Last July she read a paper, "The Politics of Ultimate Ends: The American Catholic Episcopacy, 1789-1852," at a Conference on the American Catholic Experience, Saint Mary's College, Moraga, California, and in April presented another paper "Spiritual Authority v. Legal Authority: The Incorporation of Catholic Church Property, 1789-1911," at Radcliffe College.

MARC BAER, 1976, instructor at Frostburg State College (Maryland), did a workshop last summer at the Newberry Summer History Institute on using the computer in teaching undergraduate history courses. This summer he will attend an NEH summer seminar at Columbia with Stephen Koss on British political culture since 1870. He is revising his dissertation for publication, tentatively titled "Political Change in Victorian London, 1832-1885."

HARRY DAHLHEIMER, 1976, is about to commence a three-year stint as chairman of the History Department at SUNY College at Cortland. He attended an NEH seminar in Chinese history at Chicago last summer and gave a public lecture at Cortland in the fall on the course of U.S.-Chinese relations since 1949. He is working on a paper for a panel on the topic "The U.S. and Germany: Intelligence and Diplomacy in the Inter-War Period" at the Duquesne University History Forum next fall.

MARVIN W. FALK, 1976, at the University of Alaska, Fairbanks, has published "The Alaska and Polar Regions Collection at the Elmer E. Rasmuson Library," in Alaska Journal (Winter 1979). His "Researching the Church in Alaska's Past—The Resources of the Elmer E. Rasmuson Library" will be published as part of the proceedings of the Church in Alaska's Past Conference. He has been elected president of the Alaska Historical Society and also serves as chairman of the University of Alaska's Campus Assembly staff affairs committee. Last fall he was in Europe to attend the seventh Northern Libraries Colloquy in Paris, the German Historikertag in Hamburg, and also to work in libraries in Kew, Cambridge, Münster, and Copenhagen.

ALAN JANUARY, 1976, is coeditor of the Biographical Directory of the Indiana General Assembly and research historian for the History of the Indiana General Assembly. "Besides revising my dissertation for publication, I have started a study of the political transition of Indiana Whigs after the breakup of the Whig Party in the 1850s."

LAWRENCE M. BRYANT, 1978, remains an assistant professor at Spring Hill College in Mobile, Alabama. In the spring, he read a paper, "Styles of Ceremonies in Renaissance Paris: The Royal Entry Ceremony," at the French Historical Studies Conference in Pittsburgh.

MARIAM DARCE FRENIER, 1978, University of Minnesota, Morris, published an article on "Aids and Barriers to Feminism in Modern China" in the International Journal of Women's Studies (May/June 1978). She gave a paper called "American Anti-Feminism, 1890-1919 and in the 1970s" to a conference of Minnesota Women in Higher Education. Last summer she attended the Summer Institute for Women in Higher Education Administration at Bryn Mawr, and at UMM has been coordinating the effort to add a women's studies minor to the offerings.

LOREN N. HORTON, 1978, continues in the position at the State Historical Society in Iowa City where he has been for the last six years. He has published "Through the Eyes of Artists: Iowa Towns in the 19th Century" and "River Town: Davenport's Early Years," both in the Palimpsest (September/October 1978 and January/February 1979), three essays in the booklet Iowa Constitution and Essays (1979), and a book review in Annals of Iowa. He is also coauthor of a technical sheet from the State Historical Society entitled "Care of Historical Photographs." He was program chairman for the national convention of the American Association for State and Local History, session moderator at a regional archives symposium, session speaker at the national convention of the American Association of Museums, and a faculty member at a workshop of the American Association for State and Local History.

PHILLIP E. MYERS, 1978, has become assistant professor at Mankato State University in Minnesota. He is revising his dissertation for publication under the title "Mask of Indifference: Great Britain's North American Policy and the Path to the Treaty of Washington, 1815-1871." Last summer he taught at The University of Iowa.

Traveling Fellowships for Doctoral Research

The History Department recognizes that a most urgent financial need, one which is presently not being met, is for funds that can be used to meet the spiraling costs of research away from the campus conducted by doctoral students working on dissertations. Nearly all doctoral candidates must conduct off-campus research in libraries, archives, and miscellaneous repositories possessing relevant historical sources. For doctoral students working on dissertations in European, Asian, or Latin American history, the costs for travel abroad plus living expenses are especially steep. Even for Americanists, whose research may involve a sojourn of several months in Washington, D.C., New York, Boston, or some cluster of different locations, the costs pose serious problems. These often cause postponement, and, in other ways, the extension of time required to complete dissertations. The department, therefore, wants to appeal to its alumni and friends, those who can best appreciate the need for careful and thorough basic research, to make contributions which can assist doctoral candidates in easing these financial burdens connected with their off-campus research. All contributions will be gratefully received. Checks (tax deductible) can be made payable to The University of Iowa Foundation and should be sent to the Department of History chairman.

THE UNIVERSITY OF IOWA
Department of History
Iowa City, Iowa 52242

Nonprofit Organization
U.S. Postage PAID
Permit Number 45
Iowa City, Iowa